Booking flows with fewer steps.

A four-week sprint for airlines, hotels, tours and events that lose people between search and payment.

Proof

I redesigned a major car rental booking flow from five steps to three, merging protections and add-ons into checkout. Conversion rose 5% in testing.

The sprint

Week 1	Audit. I map your flow from search to confirmation and find where people drop off, using your analytics and session recordings.
Weeks 2–3	Redesign. I redesign the steps that leak, ready for your team to build: fewer steps, prices that don't change at the end, payment without surprises.
Week 4	Test plan. You get a ranked plan of what to ship first and how to measure it, so the lift shows up in your numbers.

What you get

- A drop-off map of your booking flow
- The redesigned flow for mobile and desktop, in Figma
- A test plan with the metric for each change
- A walkthrough with your product and engineering team

Who it’s for

Airlines, hotels, tour operators and event ticketing. Best when you have a conversion target this quarter or a peak-season date coming up, and your own team is booked on the roadmap.

Fixed price, from £18,000

Neil McArdle, product designer · neil@neilmcardle.com